

Chrono Series 2018: Even more sound for your money

Weilrod, 07th of August 2018. Canton's compact and floorstanding speakers in the Chrono series have been given something of a makeover in addition to new membrane materials in the mid and low-frequency range.

Materials from the higher series

An upgrade for improved sound: instead of aluminium cone membranes, a high-quality titanium chassis is now being used in the mid and low-frequency range, something usually found in Canton's more expensive series. The new double-cone membrane with its continuous membrane surface is also being used in the low-frequency range of the Chrono 90 and Chrono 80 floorstanding speakers.

Larger cabinet volume

The cabinets of the floorstanding speaker are now deeper, creating a larger volume. In the large floorstanding speaker Chrono 90, there is room in the new Chrono Series for a larger 200 mm-diameter low-frequency chassis. The back-firing bass reflex port now available gives an overall look of a new type of loudspeaker. The Chrono 50 Center is 45 mm wider and 30 mm less deep, which means it can be used with greater flexibility and results in more space in the home cinema.

Clean design

The loudspeakers in the new Chrono Series differ from their predecessors in their appearance as well: the previous combination of vinyl decor foil and the high sheen of the varnished acoustic baffle is still there, but the black design in a wooden structure has made way for a new high-quality structured foil. Black, screwless rings and a modern base construction round off its clean new look.

Model overview:

All the models in the new Chrono Series 2018 come in black and white.
